FERRERO

BRAND DETAILS:

We have to go back to the 1940s to discover the roots of this success. These are the years in which Piera and Pietro, Michele's parents, transform a pastry shop into a factory. The Ferrero family was the first Italian company after World War II to open production sites and offices abroad in the confectionery sector, transforming the company into a true international group.

BRAND DETAILS:

In 1932, a Belgian baker named Jan Boone Sr., creates a caramelized cookie with nothing but natural ingredients. He names it Lotus, after the flower that symbolizes purity. In the 1950s, baker Boone starts wrapping cookies individually. It's an instant hit. It's eagerly snapped up by cafes and restaurants as the cookie and coffee have complementary profiles. They boost each other's flavor. Not surprisingly, the name Lotus Biscoff itself is a combination of 'biscuit' and 'coffee'.

Vergani

Secondo Vergani

BRAND DETAILS:

The bride and groom were offered a sweet made with honey, almonds and egg white, in the form of Torrazzo or "torrione", the thirteenth century tower (of Cremona cathedral), from which the Italian word for nougat, "Torrone", would seem to take its name. During the nineteenth century in Cremona many groceries were producing the nougat by hand. Secondo Vergani worked as a grocer's boy in Porta Venezia. In 1881 he acquired the shop and started devoting himself to the production of nougat.
